OPERATION JUNCTION CITY THE FIGHT AT AP-BAU-BANG, MARCH 20, 1967

Phase I of Operation "Junction City" was conducted from late February to mid-March 1967 and involved the U.S. 1st and 25th Infantry Divisions and various ARVN forces. They were deployed in the shape of a giant horseshoe, pointing south. 1st Division was on the east and north with the 25th Division on the northwest and west. The 25th was also tasked with driving a force through the open (southern) end of the "Horseshoe" to drive the enemy into the troops holding the perimeter. The total area covered included nearly 2,500 square kilometers. In addition to the 1st and 25th Divisions, the operation included the 173rd Airborne Brigade, two ARVN units (Task Force WALLACE), the 35th Ranger Battalion, and one troop from 1st Cavalry Regiment. Later 1st Brigade / 9th Infantry Division was added along with elements of the 5th Cavalry.

All units conducted air and ground assaults to block enemy escape routes, conducted search and destroy operations, secured lines of communication, and provided security, especially for engineers clearing mines, repairing roads, and bridging the area's many streams. Colonel William W. Cobb's 11th Cavalry provided the armored "Hammer" that on D+1 would drive north into the horseshoe to locate and destroy enemy forces and facilities. This force, along with 2nd Brigade / 25th Division jumped off on 23 February seeking to locate and destroy NVA/VC installations and immediately began to uncover significant caches of supplies and equipment. Only four minor contacts were made during the day's search however. The enemy simply weren't there!

For armored units in Phase II of "Junction City", which began on 17 March, operations at battalion and squadron level were normal and mobility was stressed. The VC assault on the US fire-base near Ap-Bau-Bang is an example of a Mech Cavalry Squadron in action. The base was situated in flat country with woods to the north and west and a rubber plantation to the south, and occupied by Troop A / 3rd Squadron / 5th Cavalry. The squadron's "scout" platoon occupied "Combat Outpost 3" to the north. The VC opened fire in the last hours of 19 March, with rocket barrages and probing attacks continuing through the night. The climax came at 0500 on 20 March, however, when the VC launched their final assault.

OPERATION JUNCTION CITY

GAME LENGTH: 20 TURNS

TERRAIN: "MIXED"

"OPERATION JUNCTION CITY" SPECIAL RULES

1. The US Player deploys first and the VC Player has the initiative on turn one (1).
2. VC GHQ/HQ stands may function as "Forward Observers" for 82mm mortars.
3. One VC GHQ represents the Regiment's Commisar. It may issue orders only if the other GHQ is destroyed.
4. The VC player must "preplan" his MRL attacks. They must be plotted before the US player deploys his forces and may be scheduled to arrive up to six (6) turns before the game actually begins on turn one!

Reminder:

Please see Modern Micro Armour rule 07.12.9 for information concerning the time it takes to reload multiple rocket launchers.

Scenario featured in The Vietnam War Supplement to Micro Armour: The Game - Modern, both by the late John Fernandes.
